

JOYCE ROBINSON MYERS

Joyce Robinson Myers is a native of North Carolina, was raised in Metro Atlanta, and now resides in Washington, D.C. She is a wife and mother of two sons. Her oldest son is a member of Morehouse Class of 2028. Professionally, Joyce is a Relationship Educator & Researcher who is earning her doctorate degree. Her work is rooted in Black Love and the Black Family, focusing on family and marital structures, including relationship formation, development, and maintenance. She is passionate about educational-economic justice for Black males, relationship and marital stability for Black couples, and the educational and developmental outcomes of Black children and students. She is also the creator and owner of Match Marry Match, a dating and relationship coaching suite dedicated towards relationship education for Black female singles and Black couples.

New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Vermont, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Europe, and United Arab Emirates

As a homeschooling mother, she and her sons visited Morehouse with her then homeschool cooperative for a group tour in 2018 to expose students to Black excellence and the collegiate lifestyle. Six years later, her oldest son decided to attend Morehouse himself. Understanding the importance of planting seeds and mentoring youth, especially young Black men, Joyce is committed to serving the men of Morehouse not just as a parent leader with a servant heart but also to pay forward her full circle moment.

Joyce serves the Morehouse Parent Council as the Region 9 Alternate which consist of New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Vermont, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Europe, and United Arab Emirates. She firmly believes in the African proverbs, “many hands make light work” and “...if you want to go far, go together.” She enjoys reading, salsa dancing, traveling, and watching professional basketball, however she is a major fan of the University of North Carolina Tar Heels! She also finds fulfillment in mentoring young people about life skills, socio-emotional intelligence, and relationship formation, and spreading joy and cheer. It is also incredibly common to hear her spitting facts and dispelling myths about the gender norms and dynamics between Black men and women. Her guiding quote is “We grow as we go!”
